

Acknowledgments

This issue of Crossroads, like those that came before it, would not exist without the generous contributions of many people. Thanks to the authors, for sharing their work with us, an effort which is never easy. Thanks to our reviewers, whose insights enriched the work being developed. Thanks to the editors for countless hours of brainstorming, discussing, communicating, and coordinating. Thanks to the folks at eScholarship, particularly Justin Gonder, for e-publication assistance and troubleshooting. Thanks to UCLA Librarians Angela Riggio and Sharon Farb for helping all graduate student editors navigate the legalities of publishing. Thanks to Lisa Thorne, copy editor extraordinaire. Thanks to Bill Morosi, layout and design guru. Thanks to Gail Fox Adams, previous Crossroads Chief Editor, for leaving me such a solid foundation to build upon. Thanks to Netta Avineri for providing much needed moral support and an unwavering voice of reason. And, finally, thanks to Stacey Meeker, UCLA Graduate Student Association Director of Publications, whose knowledge and tireless work on behalf of all UCLA graduate journals has allowed us not only to grow but also to flourish.
