

Acknowledgments

This volume contains a large number of the papers presented at the 31st Japanese/Korean Linguistics Conference (JK 31), held at Monash University from October 30 to November 2, 2024. JK 31 was the first time the long-standing conference was hosted in the Southern Hemisphere. We were most fortunate to have four excellent guest speakers: Shoichi Iwasaki (UCLA), Hee-Rahk Chae (Hankuk University of Foreign Studies), Makoto Hayashi (Nagoya University), and Mi Yung Park (University of Auckland). We are grateful for their insightful presentations, which enriched the intellectual excitement of the conference. Overall, 85 presentations—17 papers at the three pre-conference workshops, four guest speakers, 26 oral presentations, and 38 poster presentations—were delivered, and JK 31 was attended by over 150 academics and students from ten different countries over four days. We extend our thanks to all the presenters and audience members who made the conference a success. We are greatly indebted to the sixty scholars who supported the conference by serving as referees. They contributed their time and effort to make the reviewing process rigorous and fair. We want to express our heartfelt appreciation for everyone whose contributions helped to make both the conference and this publication possible.

We are extremely grateful to Alice Davies and Kim Chen for their administrative expertise and support. They handled various matters above and beyond their regular duties. Without their help, the conference would not have run as smoothly as it did. We also extend our thanks to the School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures and Linguistics at Monash University for their generous support. In addition, we want to thank our volunteers Kaori Saito and Kei Hubbard, who contributed to organizing and facilitating the conference.

We are deeply grateful to the Japanese/Korean Linguistics steering committee, including Shoichi Iwasaki (UCLA), Shinichiro Fukuda (University of Hawai'i at Manoa), Mary Kim (University of Hawai'i at Manoa), Sung-Ock Sohn (UCLA), Tomoko Endo (The University of Tokyo), and Michiko Kaneyasu (UCLA) for their invaluable help in making JK 31 a success.

We are truly grateful for the generous financial support provided by the 2024 Korean Studies Grant Program of the Academy of Korean Studies (AKS-2024-C-012), the Japan Foundation, and the Japanese Studies Association of Australia. Their support enabled us to advance global discussions and knowledge of Japanese and Korean linguistics and to use this publication to further discussions.

William Giang
Lucien Brown
Shimako Iwasaki
Satoshi Nambu
Daniel Pieper
Monash University