

Call for Papers: Volume 28

Deadline January 10, 2015

The Berkeley Planning journal would like to invite submissions for Volume 28 from all planning and related fields. These fields may include geography, environmental studies, transportation, sociology, political ecology, urban theory, public health, and others. The Berkeley Planning journal is now published annually in an online format and is available in print from Amazon.com.

The Berkeley Planning journal focuses on research-based papers and book reviews, but also publishes creative formats such as essays, photo essays, and interviews. Submission guidelines and our online submission system can be accessed at <http://ced.berkeley.edu/bpj/submit-to-the-journal/>.

Each year the Berkeley Planning Journal awards one author the Kaye Bock Student Paper award for an outstanding submission that is accompanied by a $250 cash gift.
