

Letter from the Editors

Dear Readers,

We are pleased to present the second issue of the second volume of the Berkeley Undergraduate Journal of Classics. We received a record number of submissions this past cycle, which warranted a more difficult elimination process but an even more rewarding issue. We continue to strive to represent the best undergraduate work in the field of Classics from around the world, and we are excited not only about the quality of work this issue includes, but also about the range of submissions it presents, from a 20 page thesis to a page of original Latin composition.

After saying farewell to three of our four founding editors last Spring, BUJC has expanded its editorial staff, the members of which remain dedicated to the study of Classics and management of the Journal. We are very grateful to have the continued collaboration of the fourth founding editor of BUJC, Anna Trejo, during this transition of leadership within the Journal.

We continue to express our gratitude to the faculty and staff of the Berkeley Classics Department, notably to Dr. G.R.F. Ferrari, the Chair of the Classics Department, and to Cassandra Dunn, the Student Services Advisor for the Classics Department.

Finally, we continue to give our appreciation to the authors who have contributed their time and energy to the submissions within this issue.

Sincerely Yours,

Rachel Feldman and Meredith Millar
Co-Editors-in-Chief
